NEW CONGRESS FACES 3 SERIOUS PROBLEMS

TAX REDUCTION, FARM RELIEF, FLOOD CONTROL

SEVENTIETH CONGRESS FORMALLY OPENED AT CAPITOL THIS NOON

DISTINGUISHED AUDIENCE IN GALLERIES TO WITNESS CEREMONIES

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Dec. 5. — The first session of the seventieth congress, which is to deal with tax reduction, farm relief and flood control, was formally opened in the capitol at noon today.

Vice President Charles G. Dawes in the senate and William Tyler Page, clerk of the house acting for Speaker Nicholas Longworth called for order in the two chambers in accordance with the constitution at noon eastern standard time.

In the senate, prayer was immediately offered by the new chaplain, Rev. Z. B. Phillips, and the roll was ordered called for administration of the oath of office to new senators.

In the house a similar ritual was followed, the chaplain, Rev. James Shepa Montgomery, reading the prayer. Page then directed the calling of the roll which required more than half an hour.

A distinguished and colorful audience crowded into the galleries of the houses for the ceremony. Admission was gained by card and only the more prominent members of Washington society, leaders in the diplomatic corps, cabinet officers and families of congressmen were permitted to enter.

There were about 1,500 persons in the large house gallery and only 800 in the smaller senate chamber, but the jam was greater in the senate because of the expected display of fireworks over the admission of Senators-elect William S. Vare, republican, Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, republican, Illinois.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Rep. Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, listed as a possible presidential nominee, today was re-elected speaker of the house of representatives.

Longworth received 225 of the 417 votes cast. Rep. Finis Garrett of Tennessee, the democratic nominee, received 187 votes. Five members voted "present."

WANTED MOONSHINE AS 'EVIDENCE'

Crosby, Minn., Dec. 5. — (U.P.) — When he told her he wanted the bottle of alleged moonshine liquor for use as "evidence," Mrs. Mary Cooley "pulled a gun on him" and forced him to give up the bottle. Irwin Oakes, St. Cloud traveling man, told Judge Johnson in court here. Oakes brought complaint against Mrs. Cooley, resulting in her arrest.

SLAUGHTER OF JACKRABBITS

Dassel, Minn., Dec. 5. — (U.P.) — Thirteen hundred cottontails and 200 jackrabbits were slaughtered here during the annual Dassel rabbit hunt. A team captained by H. L. Abrahamson, killers of the largest number, will be guests of the losing team at an early date. It was announced.

SEEK TO HALT AVALANCHE OF DIVORCE SUITS

Paris, Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—Determined to halt a growing avalanche of divorce suits by Americans, the ministry of justice today ordered the civil court of Versailles to hold up pending cases until the exact status of plaintiffs, the length of their residence in France, and their reasons for being here could be ascertained.

The suit of Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state, is among those affected.

Among recent divorce suits at Versailles, which led to the court action, was that of Marilyn Miller, stage and movie star, against Jack Pickford.

RUSSIAN HUSBAND OF PRINCESS IS SERIOUSLY INJURED

Bonn, Germany, Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—Alexander Zoubkoff, 27-year-old Russian husband of Princess Victoria of Schaumburg-Lippe, the former kaiser's sister, was seriously injured when he fell from his motorcycle last night.

Zoubkoff was taken to a hospital.

When he fell, Zoubkoff was returning from the Aennchen, a famous inn of Godesburg.

FORMER BANK HEAD SENTENCED TO PENITENTIARY

GUY HUSTON, FORMERLY WITH JOINT LAND BANK ASSOCIATION OF U. S.

JUDGE CANT DECREES 9 YEARS' IMPRISONMENT AND $11,000 FINE

Mankato, Minn., Dec. 5.—(U.P.) — Guy Huston, New York, former president of the Joint Land Bank Association of the United States, was sentenced to serve nine years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, and pay a fine of $11,000 by Judge W. A. Cant in federal court here today.

Huston and W. H. Gold, Redwood Falls, Minn., former president of the Southern Minnesota Joint Stock Land Bank, were convicted of charges of using the mails to defraud by a jury late Saturday, following the longest federal trial in the history of Minnesota.

The case opened Oct. 16, and the jury had been held virtual prisoners until they were discharged at midnight Saturday.

Gold, found guilty on one of 12 counts of the federal indictment, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000. Huston was found guilty of eleven of twelve counts in the indictment.

Three other men, former officers of the Southern Minnesota institution, were found not guilty by the jury. They were J. E. Huston of New York, brother of Guy Huston, also a fiscal agent, and W. E. Gold and Glenn Gold, sons of the bank president for whom the verdict of guilty was returned.

REMUS WILL NOT TESTIFY IN OWN BEHALF

MAKES STATEMENT AT OPENING OF COURT THIS MORNING

SAYS "AN INCONSISTENCY THAT SHOULD BE CORRECTED HAS DEVELOPED"

Courtroom, Cincinnati, Ohio, Dec. 5.—George Remus, while angrily denouncing the writings of a New York newspaperman, announced at opening of court today that he would not testify in his own behalf.

"I want to apologize for having said previously I would be a witness," he told Judge Chester R. Shook and Charles P. Taft II, county prosecutor.

"An inconsistency that should be corrected has developed."

The statement came in the middle of a peroration in support of a motion directed against the reporter for stories on the trial. Remus is charged with the murder of his wife, Imogene.

Remus asked that the newspaperman show cause why he should not be cited for contempt of court.

The reporter was Dudley Nichols of the New York World.

The jury was not in the room when the motion was presented. The specific story objected to was one in which Nichols used and commented upon a statement signed by Miss Ruth Remus, foster daughter of the defendant, but actually prepared by a press agent.

In the statement Remus was vigorously attacked and the comment was made that it looked as though he could "get away with murder."

BANDITS AND POLICE FIGHT AT NIGHT CLUB

MACHINE GUNS, SHOTGUNS AND REVOLVERS USED AT "THE PARODY"

200 GUESTS IN EVENING CLOTHES COWER UNDER THE TABLES

Chicago, Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—Bandits and police fought with machine guns, shotguns and revolvers across the dance floor of "The Parody," one of Chicago's smartest night clubs, early today.

Nearly 200 guests in evening dress cowered under tables.

One man was killed and at least six persons were wounded. Two women, one policeman and two persons suspected of participating in the holdup were among the victims.

The bandits obtained as loot only $65 and a revolver, taken from Geo. Shultz, policeman who was off duty.

The dimly lighted hall of "The Parody" was a place of revelry when the bandits entered, with waiters hurrying about with mysterious glasses and a jazz band blaring a popular air.

But the noise stopped instantly when the six masked men appeared at the door and shouted the conventional "stick 'em up."

Two of the bandits remained at the door and the other four walked across the suddenly deserted dance floor.

"There he is," shouted one of them, apparently pointing at Dave Palinski, proprietor.

The sawed off shotguns barked. Palinski was not injured.

Police Sergeant Charles Cohen and John Fried, both off duty, drew their guns, crouched behind tables and opened fire on the bandits. The machine guns rattled out their slugs and the shotguns sprinkled lead among the tables under which guests and entertainers crouched together.

Harry Smith, waiter, was killed as he attempted to escape. His body fell in the doorway.

In the melee some of the bandits escaped—how many police were not certain. The guns were silenced and guests started to leave, leaping over Smith's body in the door. Police reserves arrived before many had left, and held the rest for questioning.

Cohen was wounded, not critically. Mrs. Fannie Hillman, guest, and June Griffin, 22, entertainer, were shot. The latter was reported in critical condition.

Abie Schaefer, 23, and an unidentified man were critically wounded. Both were said by police to have been members of the holdup gang. The unidentified man was found unconscious, still clasp a sawed-off shotgun.

William Malone, at first believed to be a patron, was wounded. He was taken to Bridewell hospital, indicating that police wanted to question him.

Several patrons were held for further questioning after all had been given a preliminary examination at the night club.

Police said they believed the raid was staged solely as a holdup, and that it had no connection with the city's gang warfare.

EARTHQUAKE IS FELT TODAY AT SANTA MARIA, CAL.

Santa Maria, Calif., Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—An earthquake of 30 seconds duration was felt here at 3:45 a. m. today.

No damage from the shock was reported.

Santa Maria was the center of a recent rather severe series of earth disturbances along the southern California coast.

San Francisco, Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—A slight earth tremor was felt at Santa Margarita, San Luis Obispo county, at 3:52 a. m., according to a message received here today by the Southern Pacific railroad.

Guadalupe and Surf, both in Santa Barbara county, also reported slight quakes, according to the message.

No damage was reported. The tremor was not felt at San Luis Obispo.

SOVIET RUSSIA STILL HOLDS THE ATTENTION OF ALL

LEAGUE OF NATIONS COUNCIL SMOOTHING OUT DIPLOMATIC SORE SPOTS

RENEWAL OF ANGLO-SOVIET RELATIONS IS NOW HINTED

Geneva, Dec. 5.—A Soviet Russia continued to hold attention today although the League of Nations council was in session to discuss the diplomatic sore spots of Europe.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, announced he would see Maxim Litvinoff, leader of the Soviet delegation to the league's preparatory disarmament conference, at 2:30 this afternoon. They will discuss possibility of renewal of Anglo-Soviet relations.

Before he entered the conference hall, Litvinoff told the United Press he would not commit Russia to any binding agreements, but would discuss world politics generally, and British-Russian relations and the Polish-Lithuanian dispute particularly.

Litvinoff told the United Press earlier that his meeting with Chamberlain had been arranged "through official sources."

"The two most important subjects we shall discuss," he said, "will be British-Russian relations and the Polish-Lithuanian dispute."

In this dispute, Russia is wholeheartedly on the side of Lithuania. Prior to today's announcement that Chamberlain and Litvinoff would confer, Litvinoff had seen Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann of Germany and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France.

When the League of Nations' council met at 11 A. M. it adopted a tentative program of international questions to be discussed by this session of the league council.

Observers here believed the acceptance of Litvinoff's offer for a conference by Chamberlain was equivalent to a tentative acceptance of the Soviet offer of renewal of diplomatic relations.

Relations between Russia and England were broken this year after Scotland Yard detectives had raided the Arcos House, a Soviet commercial headquarters.

According to French circles, the members of the league council may request Litvinoff and A. V. Lunacharsky, prominent Soviet educator and dramatist who was one of the 16 members of the Russian delegation to the preparatory disarmament conference, to remain at Geneva several days to help settle the dispute between Poland and Lithuania. That question will be one of the most knotty ones to come before the council during this session.

There also was discussion of the possibility of Russian non-aggression pacts with countries on the eastern front.

NORRIS PRESENTS RESOLUTION TO BAR 2 SENATORS

DEBATE AND DECISION GO OVER UNTIL AFTER COOLIDGE READS MESSAGE

RIGHTS OF NONE OF PARTIES TO BE PREJUDICED BY THE POSTPONEMENT

Washington, Dec. 5.—(U.P.) — A twenty-four hour armistice was signed in the senate today by the warring factions in the Vare-Smith election contest cases soon after the closely aligned 70th congress convened.

The fight to prevent the two republican senators-elect, William S. Vare, republican, Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith from taking their seats because of their big primary campaign expenditures was opened when resolutions to bar them were introduced by Senator George W. Norris, republican, Nebraska.

To save President Coolidge from embarrassment it was agreed at the suggestion of Senator Curtis, republican, floor leader, that the debate and decision about the matter would go over until after President Coolidge delivers his message to congress tomorrow.

It was specified in the agreement, reached by unanimous consent, that the rights of none of the parties involved would be prejudiced by the postponement.

Norris' resolutions were scathing denunciations of Smith and Vare. They directly charged that the re-org against them had tainted their credentials with fraud and corruption.

After this action and adoption of a few routine resolutions notifying the president and the house that the senate was in session, the senate adjourned, having been in session only 40 minutes.

Norris proposed his resolutions when the names of Smith and Vare were called among those of the 32 new senators who were being administered oaths of office.

In the resolution against Vare, Norris cited the credentials sent here by Gov. Gifford Pinchot charging that Vare had not been fairly elected.

By unanimous consent, Senator Curtis, republican floor leader, averted an immediate debate over the matter. He asked that the two senators stand aside until the other senators had been sworn. The armistice followed.

Meantime, in the house a fight on seating Rep. James Beck, republican, Pennsylvania, former solicitor-general of the U. S., was started. Rep. Garrett, democrat, Tennessee, revealed the plan to combat his seating. It was claimed he was not a Pennsylvanian, but was a resident of Washington, D. C.

The resolution against Smith duplicated the resolution the senate passed during the famous Newberry case condemning excessive campaign expenditures. The Norris resolution reads:

"Be it resolved by the senate of the United States that the acceptance and expenditure of the various sums aforesaid in behalf of the candidacy of the said Frank L. Smith is contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the dignity and honor of the senate, dangerous to the perpetuity of free government and tainted with fraud and corruption the credentials for a seat in the senate presented by the said Frank L. Smith; and

"Be it further resolved that the said Frank L. Smith is not entitled to take the oath of office and is not entitled to membership in the senate of the United States."

The Vare resolution varied only slightly from the Smith resolution. It follows:

"Be it resolved that the expenditure of such a large sum of money to secure the nomination of the said William S. Vare is contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the dignity and honor of the senate, dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government, and, together with the charges

MORE EQUIPMENT FOR BARGE LINE IS NOW DESIRED

Washington, Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—Representative Newton (Rep., Minn.), speaking for Minneapolis, told President Coolidge today additional equipment is desired on the upper Mississippi barge line between St. Louis and the Twin Cities. Newton said the president seemed interested and there would be further conferences.

WIDOW IN MURDER TRIAL TESTIFIES IN HER DEFENSE

MRS. MARGARET LILLIENDAHL IS SECOND WITNESS OF THE DAY

FIRST WAS CHARLES PHILLIPS, HER ATTORNEY IN CASE

By SAM LOVE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Courtroom, Mays Landing, N. J., Dec. 5.—Mrs. Margaret Lilliendaahl testified in her own defense today at her trial for the murder of Dr. William Lilliendaahl, her husband.

She was the second witness of the day. The first was Charles M. Phillips, her attorney, who identified Samuel Bark, as a man who had brought to his office a statement by Clyde Thompson and William Bellar, in which they claimed they had seen the Lilliendaahl murder and that Beach was at the murder scene. Bark had been with them, Phillips said he was told.

They had heard the shots fired, according to Phillips' version of what Bark told him, and then had seen Beach nearby. Frightened, they fled and drove their car into the Delaware river.

Phillips said Bark had intimated that for $800 he could build an alibi for Beach.

The story was entirely in conflict with the version which Bark had given when he was a witness.

Then Mrs. Lilliendaahl, wearing a new, small hat and new black veil, and dressed entirely in black, was called. She seemed taut and nervous.

DOTY RELEASED FROM FRENCH FOREIGN LEGION

AMERICAN ARRIVES AT MARSEILLES BY STEAMER FROM MOROCCO

NOW AT FORT ST. JEAN AWAITING LAST FORMALITIES OF DISCHARGE

Marseilles, France, Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—Bennett J. Doty, of Biloxi, Miss., arrived here today on the steamer Tafna from Oran, Morocco, following his release from the French Foreign Legion.

Doty now is at Fort St. Jean, awaiting the last formalities of his discharge. He is to be placed on a steamer for the United States.

Doty still is known in legion records as Gilbert Clare, the name under which he enlisted. He came from Morocco with other legionnaires due for discharge.

of corruption and fraud made in the report of said committee and substantiated by the evidence taken by said committee, and the charges of corruption and fraud officially made by the governor of Pennsylvania, tainted with fraud and corruption the credentials of the said William S. Vare, for a seat in the United States senate, and

"Be it further resolved that the said William S. Vare is not entitled to take the oath of office and is not entitled to membership in the senate of the United States."

Two members in wheel chairs, Rep. Mansfield, democrat, Texas, and Rep. Boies, republican, Iowa, attended the house opening.

MEN LITERALLY SNATCHED FROM WATERY GRAVE

24 SEAMEN HAULED FOUR MILES WITH LINES AND LIFE-BUOYS

RESCUE RIVALS THE GREATEST DEEDS PERFORMED AT SEA

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 5.—(U.P.) — Forty-eight men aboard two crippled steamers off Cape Hatteras inlet, were literally snatched from death by being hauled four miles with lines and lifebuoys, through raging seas to the safety of the beach.

Twenty-four of the crew of the disabled Greek tanker Kyzikes, formerly the Paraguay, driven onto the rocks north of Kitty Hawk, N. C., were saved by coast guardsmen. Four of the Kyzikes' men were lost, but the others were brought off safely with the breeches buoy.

The Elizabeth City, N. C., station reported the Hatteras Inlet station crew saved the Cibao's men; and the Kill Devil Hill station reported through the Elizabeth City station that the Kyzikes' crew had been rescued. The work of saving the Cibao's men finished, the coast guardsmen started for another wreck, reported north of Cape Hatteras inlet.

Meantime, word came that the Kyzikes' had broken in two. The guardsmen's work had been none too soon.

Saturday night, the SOS of the Kyzikes was heard by stations along the coast. The vessel reported she was in distress in a gulf stream gale. Other vessels hastened to her aid. Later the storm shoved her toward the coast and piled her up on the rocks along the treacherous strip of North Carolina coast.

For 24 hours, men of the two stations were without rest and had only such food as they could pack in their drenched oilskins.

The story of the rescue of the Cibao's men, relayed into Norfolk by wireless when telephone and telegraph wires went out with the storm, is a drama of heroism that rivals the greatest deeds of the seas.

In small motorboats, the guardsmen fought their way to the side of the Cibao. A 70-mile gale tossed their craft and froze the sleet on their hands and faces.

For four miles, the guardsmen drove their boats, only to find they could not tie up alongside the Cibao. Above the screech of the storm, they shouted to the crew to tie on lifebelts and throw lines to the motorboats. Then the boats fought their way to shore, dragging the men astern. Once ashore, some had to be given first aid treatment as they gathered around huge bonfires.

It took six trips to gather in all the men.

The Kyzikes' first SOS calls came late Saturday. Two steamers stood by but lost her by morning. She continued to snap out calls until 10 A. M. Sunday. Meantime, the coast guard had sent out the cutters Modoc and Garrahasset. The latter had to put back, defeated by the storm, her deckhouse was swept away and her lifeboats were swept overboard. Meantime, the Kyzikes had piled up offshore. By shooting a line from shore the guardsmen were able to bring the crew off with breeches buoy.

During the night four men had been swept overboard.

NORRIS PRESENTS RESOLUTION TO BAR 2 SENATORS

DEBATE AND DECISION GO OVER UNTIL AFTER COOLIDGE READS MESSAGE

RIGHTS OF NONE OF PARTIES TO BE PREJUDICED BY THE POSTPONEMENT

Washington, Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—A twenty-four hour armistice was signed in the senate today by the warring factions in the Vare-Smith election contest cases soon after the closely aligned 70th congress convened.

The fight to prevent the two republican senators-elect, William S. Vare, republican, Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith from taking their seats because of their big primary campaign expenditures was opened when resolutions to bar them were introduced by Senator George W. Norris, republican, Nebraska.

To save President Coolidge from embarrassment it was agreed at the suggestion of Senator Curtis, republican, floor leader, that the debate and decision about the matter would go over until after President Coolidge delivers his message to congress tomorrow.

It was specified in the agreement, reached by unanimous consent, that the rights of none of the parties involved would be prejudiced by the postponement.

Norris' resolutions were scathing denunciations of Smith and Vare. They directly charged that the record against them had tainted their credentials with fraud and corruption.

After this action and adoption of a few routine resolutions notifying the president and the house that the senate was in session, the senate adjourned, having been in session only 40 minutes.

Norris proposed his resolutions when the names of Smith and Vare were called among those of the 32 new senators who were being administered oaths of office.

In the resolution against Vare, Norris cited the credentials sent here by Gov. Gifford Pinchot charging that Vare had not been fairly elected.

By unanimous consent, Senator Curtis, republican floor leader, averted an immediate debate over the matter. He asked that the two senators stand aside until the other senators had been sworn. The armistice followed.

Meantime, in the house a fight on seating Rep. James Beck, republican, Pennsylvania, former solicitor-general of the U. S., was started. Rep. Garrett, democrat, Tennessee, revealed the plan to combat his seating. It was claimed he was not a Pennsylvanian, but was a resident of Washington, D. C.

The resolution against Smith duplicated the resolution the senate passed during the famous Newberry case condemning excessive campaign expenditures. The Norris resolution reads:

"Be it resolved by the senate of the United States that the acceptance and expenditure of the various sums aforesaid in behalf of the candidacy of the said Frank L. Smith is contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the dignity and honor of the senate, dangerous to the perpetuity of free government and tainted with fraud and corruption the credentials for a seat in the senate presented by the said Frank L. Smith; and

"Be it further resolved that the said Frank L. Smith is not entitled to take the oath of office and is not entitled to membership in the senate of the United States."

The Vare resolution varied only slightly from the Smith resolution. It follows:

"Be it resolved that the expenditure of such a large sum of money to secure the nomination of the said William S. Vare is contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the dignity and honor of the senate, dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government, and, together with the charges

MORE EQUIPMENT FOR BARGE LINE IS NOW DESIRED

Newton said the president seemed interested and there would be further conferences.

WIDOW IN MURDER TRIAL TESTIFIES IN HER DEFENSE

MRS. MARGARET LILLIENDAHL IS SECOND WITNESS OF THE DAY

FIRST WAS CHARLES PHILLIPS, HER ATTORNEY IN CASE

By SAM LOVE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Courtroom, Mays Landing, N. J., Dec. 5.—Mrs. Margaret Lilliendaahl testified in her own defense today at her trial for the murder of Dr. William Lilliendaahl, her husband.

She was the second witness of the day. The first was Charles M. Phillips, her attorney, who identified Samuel Bark, a man who had brought to his office a statement by Clyde Thompson and William Bellar, in which they claimed they had seen the Lilliendaahl murder and that Beach was at the murder scene. Bark had been with them, Phillips said he was told.

They had heard the shots fired, according to Phillips' version of what Bark told him, and then had seen Beach nearby. Frightened, they fled and drove their car into the Delaware river.

Phillips said Bark had intimated that for $800 he could build an alibi for Beach.

The story was entirely in conflict with the version which Bark had given when he was a witness.

Then Mrs. Lilliendaahl, wearing a new, small hat and new black veil, and dressed entirely in black, was called. She seemed taut and nervous.

DOTY RELEASED FROM FRENCH FOREIGN LEGION

AMERICAN ARRIVES AT MARSEILLES BY STEAMER FROM MOROCCO

NOW AT FORT ST. JEAN AWAITING LAST FORMALITIES OF DISCHARGE

Marseilles, France, Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—Bennett J. Doty, of Biloxi, Miss., arrived here today on the steamer Tafna from Oran, Morocco, following his release from the French Foreign Legion.

Doty now is at Fort St. Jean, awaiting the last formalities of his discharge. He is to be placed on a steamer for the United States.

Doty still is known in legion records as Gilbert Clare, the name under which he enlisted. He came from Morocco with other legionnaires due for discharge.

of corruption and fraud made in the report of said committee and substantiated by the evidence taken by said committee, and the charges of corruption and fraud officially made by the governor of Pennsylvania, tainted with fraud and corruption the credentials of the said William S. Vare, for a seat in the United States senate; and

"Be it further resolved that the said William S. Vare is not entitled to take the oath of office and is not entitled to membership in the senate of the United States."

Two members in wheel chairs, Rep. Mansfield, democrat, Texas, and Rep. Boies, republican, Iowa, attended the house opening.

MEN LITERALLY SNATCHED FROM WATERY GRAVE

24 SEAMEN HAULED FOUR MILES WITH LINES AND LIFE-BUOYS

RESCUE RIVALS THE GREATEST DEEDS PERFORMED AT SEA

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—Forty-eight men aboard two crippled steamers off the North Carolina coast were saved by coast guardsmen over the week-end in a treacherous storm.

Four men were lost.

Twenty-four of the crew of the Norwegian steamer Cibao, which grounded off Cape Hatteras inlet, were literally snatched from death by being hauled four miles with lines and lifebuoys, through raging seas to the safety of the beach.

Twenty-four of the crew of the disabled Greek tanker Kyzikes, formerly the Paraguay, driven onto the rocks north of Kitty Hawk, N. C., were saved by coast guardsmen. Four of the Kyzikes' men were lost, but the others were brought off safely with the breeches buoy.

The Elizabeth City, N. C., station reported the Hatteras light station crew saved the Cibao's men; and the Kill Devil Hill station reported that the Kyzikes' crew had been rescued. The work of saving the Cibao's men finished, the coast guardsmen started for another wreck, reported north of Cape Hatteras inlet.

Meantime, word came that the Kyzikes' had broken in two. The guardsmen's work had been none too soon.

Saturday night, the SOS of the Kyzikes was heard by stations along the coast. The vessel reported she was in distress in a gulf stream gale. Other vessels hastened to her aid. Later the storm shoved her toward the coast and piled her up on the rocks along the treacherous strip of North Carolina coast.

For 24 hours, men of the two stations were without rest and had only such food as they could pack in their drenched oilskins.

The story of the rescue of the Cibao's men, relayed into Norfolk by wireless when telephone and telegraph wires went out with the storm, is a drama of heroism that rivals the greatest deeds of the seas.

In small motorboats, the guardsmen fought their way to the side of the Cibao. A 70-mile gale tossed their craft and froze the sleet on their hands and faces.

For four miles, the guardsmen drove their boats, only to find they could not tie up alongside the Cibao. Above the screech of the storm, they shouted to the crew to tie on lifebelts and throw lines to the motorboats. Then the boats fought their way to shore, dragging the men astern. Once ashore, some had to be given first aid treatment as they gathered around huge bonfires.

It took six trips to gather in all the men.

The Kyzikes' first SOS calls came late Saturday. Two steamers stood by but lost her by morning. She continued to snap out calls until 10 A. M. Sunday. Meantime, the coast guard had sent out the cutters Modoc and Garrahasset. The latter had to put back, defeated by the storm, her deckhouse was swept away and her lifeboats were swept overboard. Meantime, the Kyzikes had piled up offshore. By shooting a line from shore the guardsmen were able to bring the crew off with breeches buoy.

During the night four men had been swept overboard.

BRAINERD BOY ADVANCED

Stanley W. Sandberg Now in Hospital Corps Training School

The Brainerd navy recruiting station is in receipt of information to the effect that Stanley William Sandberg whose guardian is Louis E. Fisher, of 513 3rd Ave. N. E., has been transferred to the hospital corps training school at Mare Island, Calif., for 32 weeks instructions in the duties of the hospital corps.

Stanley enlisted at Brainerd on September 27, of this year, was sent to the Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., for two months preliminary training which all new men must undergo, and then true to the promises made him upon enlistment, was allowed to choose that branch of the naval service which he liked best. He selected the hospital corps which is very interesting and undoubtedly when his enlistment is completed he will be a trained pharmacist.

Mare Island is located on the north shore of a part of San Francisco Bay and there are many enjoyable sights in that vicinity which are very much appreciated by the naval man when on shore leave. There are always many desirable openings in the navy for young men imbued with ambition and G. F. Kelly, recruiting officer for this district will be glad to receive inquiries at the post office from those interested.

THE new Ford car has been on the market only a few days, but it has already created unusual interest throughout the country. Millions of people got the full details of it last week for the first time and were delighted with the story of its beauty, speed, comfort, safety and low price.

All day long and far into the night, great crowds gathered in hundreds of Ford salesrooms from Maine to Florida and from New York to San Francisco. Never has such interest been shown in a new car. Never has any new car so far exceeded expectations.

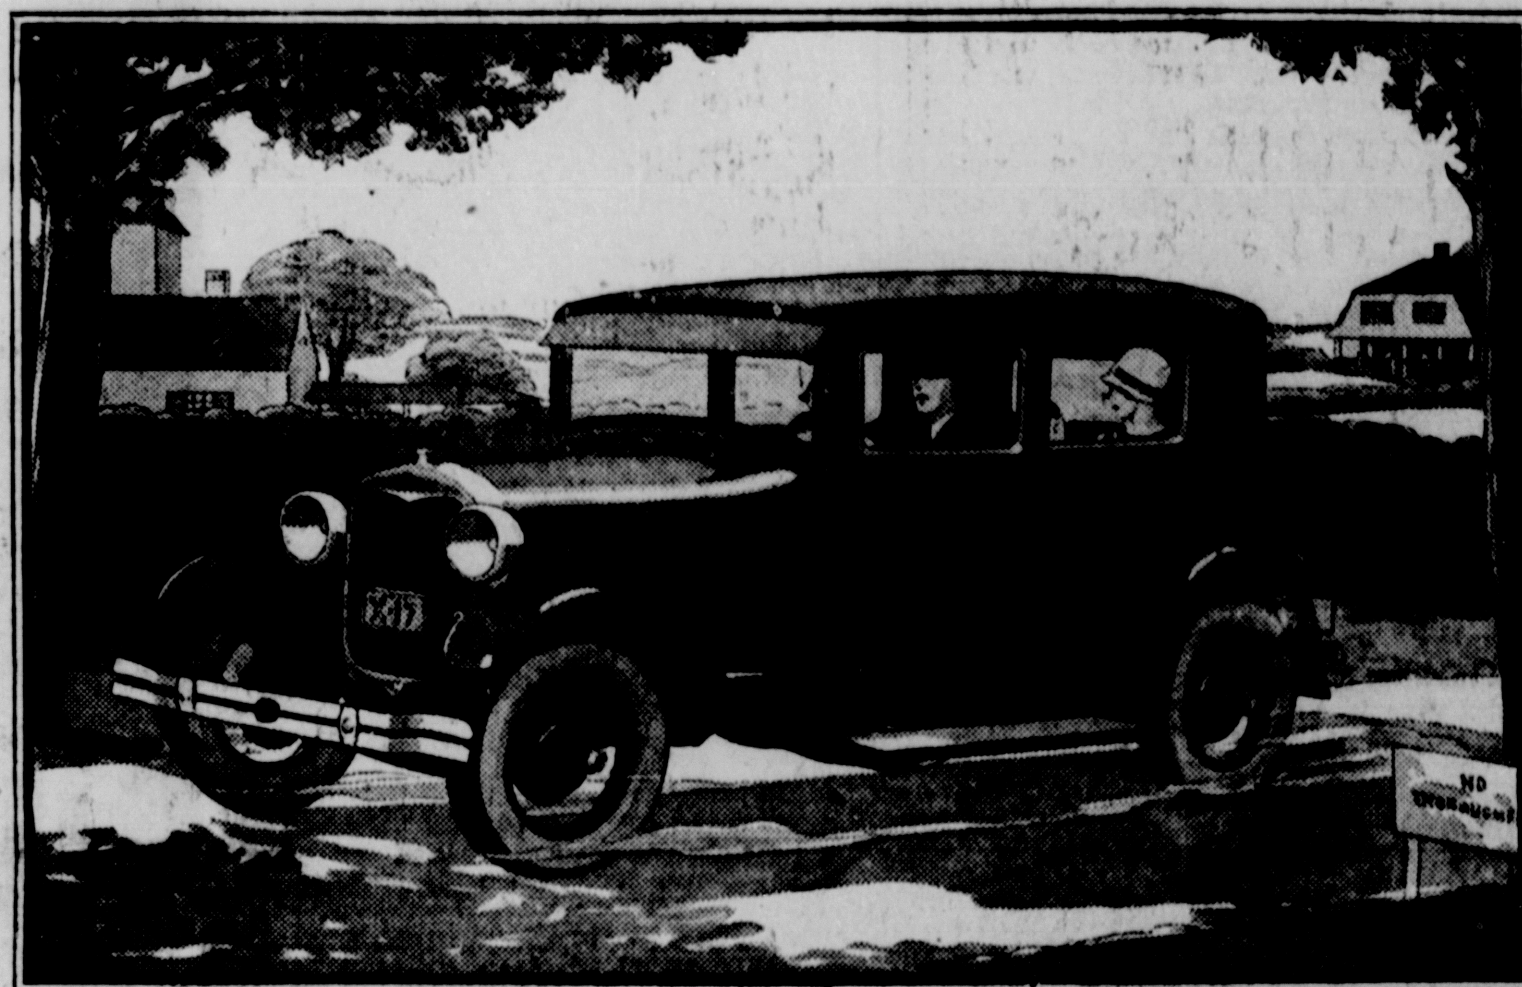

People knew that Ford was making a new car. They knew it was a good car. They had read announcements about it. But they had no idea it would be a car like this. Their quick appreciation of it is shown by the record-breaking sales.

Greatest day in the history of the automobile industry

Thousands upon thousands of orders for the new Ford car have been received since last Friday. These, and the advance orders placed with us by motorists even before the car was officially announced, will keep the entire Ford plant working day and night for weeks to come.

Such figures are a clear and unmistakable reflection of the value that has been built into the new Ford car. It is, without question, the outstanding purchase of all time in the light-car field.

car—ride in it—know the thrill of driving it easily and safely through thickest traffic or step it up to sixty and sixty-five on the open road, you cannot begin to appreciate the extent of the many mechanical improvements embodied in its construction.

It is difficult to believe that so much speed, power, beauty, quiet, comfort and safety can be had at such a low price. It would be impossible if this new car were made by anyone but Ford.

Only Ford could sell such a fine car at such a low price

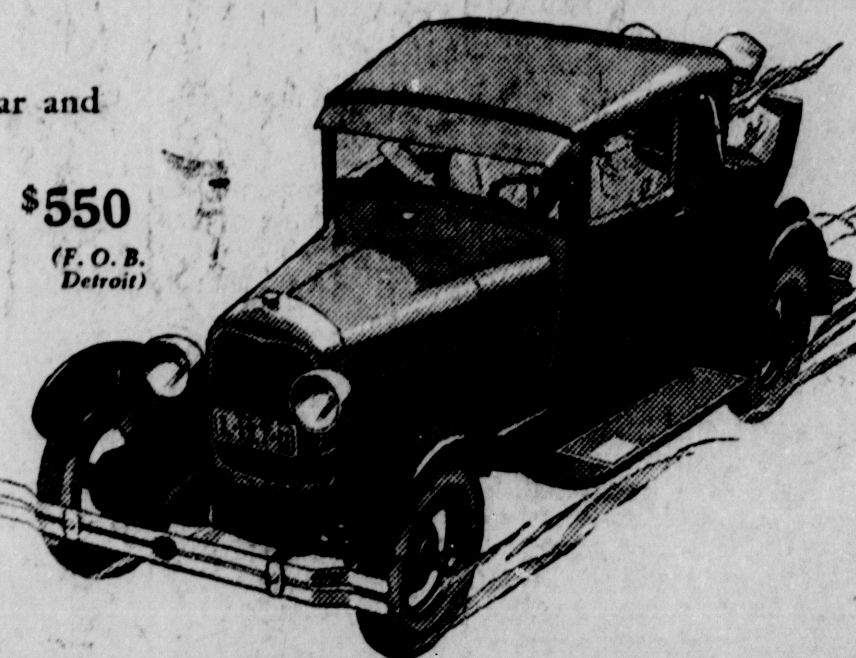

The low price of the new Ford car and its exceptional performance are the result of manufacturing practices and economies as unusual as the car itself. The new Ford is more than a new automobile. It is a new idea in modern, economical transportation.

By all means, take a little while today to learn about this new automobile. You will know that there is nothing quite like it anywhere in quality and price.

THE PAVING PROGRAM

Good Old Joe Reynolds, formerly director of the editorial policy of the Mankato Free Press, is heading up a movement to unite all good road agencies in the state for the purpose of bringing about the paving of all of Minnesota's trunk highway system. He proposes united, rather than individual action, believing that if we all pull in one direction, we'll get some place, whereas if we all pull in different directions, we'll get nowhere. And Joe is right.

If Joe wants to do something really worth while, he'll give a thought to the proposal to split the gasoline tax between state and county officials. To our way of thinking, this proposal, especially if handled by politicians, constitutes a real threat at Minnesota's future roads building.

Up here in the so-called "sticks", you and I know what we can expect if anything happens that will put the expenditure of these road funds at the hands of average county and township officials. It might just as well be thrown away. And this newspaper now promises itself and its readers that if township boards, especially, have anything to say about the spending of gas tax funds, the proposal will be fought, tooth and toe nail. We have a fine road system and it is getting better. There is still much to be done and we should safeguard its progress.

So long as road construction remains on the present basis, we'll get more out of the county aid plan than we ever could expect from any species of supervision and administration in which township boards have anything to say.

We have two kinds of roads that usually are passable—state highways and state aid roads. The other kind—township roads—are fair weather affairs. Let's be content with a half a loaf if we must. Remember the dog that dropped his bone into the creek because he imagined the reflection of his possession in the water looked a bit bigger.—Pequot Review.

DODGING SNOW PLOWS

A WARNING to motorists to watch for snow plows and to use caution in meeting or passing them, was issued this week by the State Highway department. All the larger snow plows have wings or blades extending several feet beyond the sides of the truck or tractor to which they are attached.

The snow plows cannot dodge vehicles, nor can they "pull in their wings" for vehicles they meet. For one thing it cannot be done quickly enough to avoid a collision, and if it were done, it would leave a pile of snow dangerous to traffic.

To make the wings or blades visible, the outer ends, both front and back, are being painted with six inch stripes of black and yellow. Sometimes the black and yellow star is used on the back. The yellow is more clearly visible in the snow than white paint.

For the protection of the motoring public and the snow plow operators, all snow plows carry an abundance of lights. Two regular headlamps are placed in front, mounted high and slanted downwards. White and yellow flood lights are used to illuminate the wings. There are also blue lights visible from both front and rear, and two red or yellow tail lights. The lights are used whenever it is snowing or foggy, as well as at night.

It may be mentioned that last winter an automobile collided with a snow plow in the vicinity of the Twin Cities.

MAKES PLAIN STATEMENT

ALFRED JAKUES, former United States district attorney for Minnesota, a lawyer well known to Brainerd bar and bench, who has delivered addresses in this city, was asked to join forces with the Duluth volunteer committee, recently organized as a part of the National Association Against the Prohibition amendment and this is the plain statement he made:

"Your letter asking contribution to the association received. I am in favor of the Eighteenth amendment. It is a part of the Constitution of my country and I am for that Constitution."

"I do not believe in any change in the Eighteenth Amendment. I do not believe in its nullification. It must be enforced and all laws passed pursuant to it must be enforced. No real American can violate or acquiesce in its violation or the violation of laws passed to secure its enforcement."

"You can readily see that I cannot contribute anything for the support of the objects of your association."

ILLEGIBLE SIGNATURES

THE state legislature took cognizance of the illegibility of the signature of the average notary public and now makes him rubber stamp or print a duplicate of his name. In Illinois, for years, the notary had his name engraved on the seal.

That takes care of the notaries. But we still have many people, bank cashiers and other public men, who take a positive delight in evolving a signature that looks like a tumble weed caught in an August breeze. It causes endless trouble in newspaper offices, recording offices and other places to decipher some of the names received.

True, it is not possible to standardize the writing of people, but schools should inculcate the thought that legibility is the first consideration in all writing.

C. M. and Marc Atkinson, father and son, editors and publishers of the Hibbing Daily News, have sold their paper to R. W. Hitchcock and James G. Early of the Hibbing Tribune. The new owners took possession this week. The Atkinsons started their daily eight years ago, discontinuing at that time the weekly which they had published many years. Early in the history of the Cuyuna iron range they published the Crosby Crucible, which some ten years ago was consolidated with the Crosby Courier.

THE mythology of ancient days pictured death riding a horse. The four horsemen galloped through the country with death on the trail. Nowadays a horseman rarely commits any damage. He may, like the Prince of Wales, fall off his mount. The greatest carnage is laid to the automobile and its driver.

USING country dailies and weeklies in its campaign of publicity, the Minnesota Power & Light Company sold its complete block of cumulative preferred stock. It announces the issue was over-subscribed, and the company expresses its appreciation of the confidence shown.

THE Lowden boom for the presidency is gaining some strength, here and there.

ORGANIZATION TO COMPLETE DETAILS

Meeting of All Interested in Historical Society to be Held Tomorrow

IN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Committee Appointed to Draw up Articles of Incorporation to Report

Completion of details relative to the organization of a bona fide Crow Wing County Historical society to preserve all valuable material and historical data pertaining to this county as expressed in the will of the late Leon E. Lum and advanced by diligent workers of this community at a recent meeting when a committee of six was appointed to draw up by-laws for the organization, will take place at a meeting scheduled for tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

The committee appointed to draw up articles of incorporation will present a report which they have been working on since their appointment. The committee follows: Mrs. M. A. Bronson, regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution; R. R. Gould, president of the Chamber of Commerce; A. J. Forsythe, F. W. Wieland, publisher of The Brainerd Daily Dispatch; Irma Camp Hartley, county superintendent of schools, and S. R. Adair, county treasurer.

The late Leon E. Lum included in his will a $500 bond for the establishment of a county historical society.

PAUL WANER IS MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

NOW PLAYING
SECOND YEAR
IN THE MAJORS

WON THE PRIZE WITH 72 OUT OF
POSSIBLE EIGHTY VOTES

YOUNG MAN SKYROCKETED TO ENDURING FAME OVER-
NIGHT

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Dec. 5.—Paul Waner, who has been voted the National League's most valuable player for 1927, is perhaps the most colorful player in the major leagues.

In his second year in the major leagues, Waner won the prize with 72 out of a possible 80 votes cast by the committee of sports writers and whose decision was announced over the week-end.

Waner skyrocketed to fame overnight. He came to the Pirates from San Francisco in 1926 and in his first year played sensationally, batting .336 in 144 games.

The past season Waner won the batting crown of the National League by a batting average of .379, leading his closest rival, Hornsby of the Giants, by twenty points. Waner also led in hits with 326 and triples with 18.

Go back only a few years and Waner was just a kid pitcher for a college team in Oklahoma. He jumped all the way to San Francisco of the Pacific Coast League in 1921. He was only 19 then. He developed a sore arm and it was this freak of fate that caused him to turn out-felder.

In 1924 he won a regular berth in the San Francisco outfield and batted .356. The next season he batted .401 and won his trial with the Pirates.

Waner is the first outfielder to win the National League award. There is a wide gulf between Waner and Bob O'Farrell of the Cardinals, the 1926 winner.

O'Farrell won his award principally on defensive play. He was the backbone of the St. Louis team in 1926 but displayed none of the qualities which won for Waner his prize.

Waner led the offensive of the Pirates with his dashing, daring play. Possessed of one of the keenest batting eyes in the major leagues, Waner was ever a menace to opposing pitchers. He was fleet as the wind on the bases and a ball hawk in right field.

There was nothing common between Waner and any of the other winners of the National League award. Dazzy Vance of the Robins won the first award in 1924 on his brilliant pitching record.

In 1925 Hornsby, who was with the Cardinals at that time, won the award on his offensive playing, but it was of a widely different style than that of Waner.

Oddly enough, Hornsby was third in this year's election with 54 points. Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals, for whom, Hornsby was traded, was second with 66 points.

Frisch did not receive a single vote for first place but piled up his points on smaller votes, being well near the top in almost every ballot.

Two pitchers, Red Lucas of the Reds and Charlie Root of the Cubs, received one first place each. Waner received five.

Paul Waner's kid brother, Lloyd, in his first year in the big leagues, was sixth in the voting with 25 points.

A young player and apparently with many of the best years of his career ahead of him, Paul Waner undoubtedly will be a serious contender for the most valuable player award again.

Hornsby is another winner of the award who bids fair to compete for the prize again.

Unlike the American League, the rules of the National do not bar a player once he wins the prize.

DEADLOCK AMONG LEAGUE OFFICIALS

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—Officials of the American League Baseball association attending the meetings of major and minor league officials here this week, were deadlocked today over the question of barring major league ownership of clubs in that circuit.

A resolution excluding clubs from the American association circuit which are owned by major league clubs, was introduced by William Neal, vice president of the Louisville club. Four clubs voted in favor of the resolution and four took a stand against it.

Clubs favoring the proposal were Kansas City, Indianapolis, Louisville and Milwaukee. Opposed were

INDEPENDENT BASKETBALL IN THE LIMELIGHT

St. Paul, Columbus, Minneapolis and Toledo.

Another vote on the resolution as expected at today's session.

The 1928 playing season of the American association will be opened at Toledo, Louisville, Columbus and Indianapolis—all on the eastern end of the loop. Thomas Hickey, president of the American association, announced that the season will open either on April 10 or 11 and close September 23 or 30.

CHICK' MEEHAN IS AMONG THE 'UNCERTAIN' COACHES

New York, Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—"Chick" Meehan has joined T. A. D. Jones in the list of football coaches who are uncertain concerning their plans for 1928. Meehan, who has made a striking success as coach at New York university, will not return next fall but will accept one of a number of attractive offers elsewhere.

Jones, under pressure from Yale graduates and alumni, may change his mind and choose to coach at New Haven in 1928.

Since Meehan's resignation, there has been some talk of "Chick" succeeding Jones at Yale. But men in touch with the Eli football situation declare this to be impossible. Meehan is not a Yale man.

Telegrams are pouring in upon Jones, urging him to withdraw his resignation, but for the moment "Tad" is standing pat.

The Brainerd basketball season will officially open here this Wednesday evening at the high school gymnasium when the American Legion team will be seen in action against the Pequot city team.

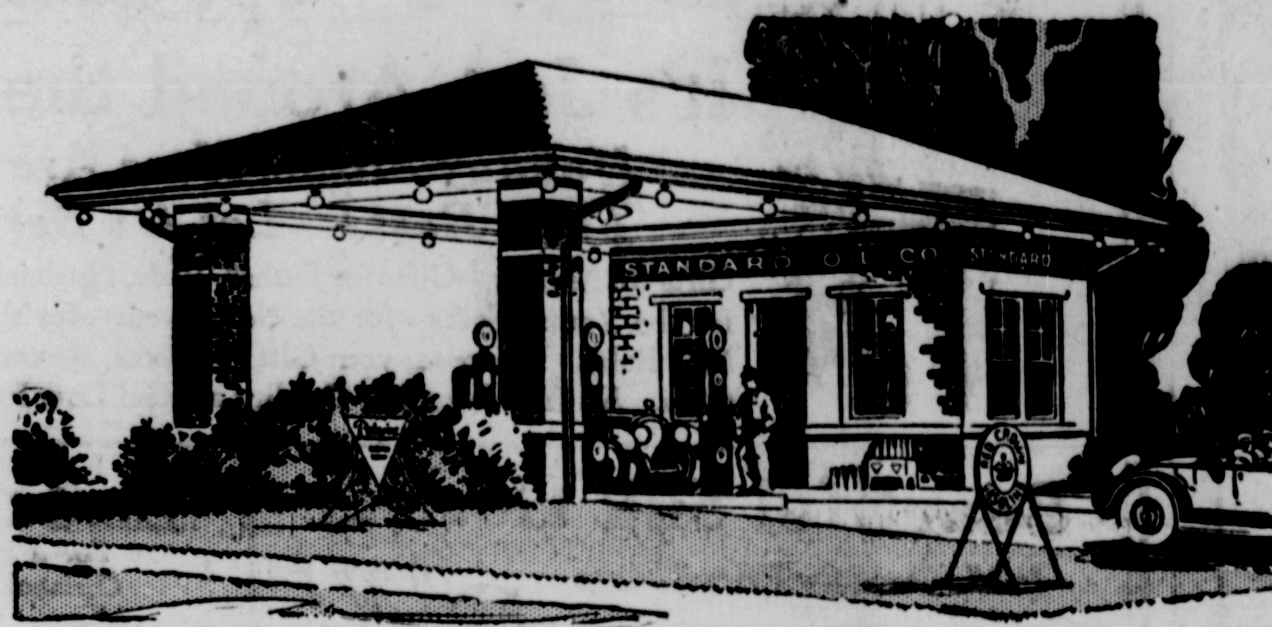

the local boys in good shape for the opening battle. Any rough spots in the team play are expected to be ironed out this week. While the new suits have not arrived yet, it is hoped that they will be here by Wednesday.

Brainerd will be represented by the following players picked from recent scrimmages when all players were given an equal tryout for positions: Whitlock, Fitzharris, Lowe, Marshall, DeRocher, O. Heikkinen, Anderson, B. Heikkinen, Avery and Hagberg.

Pequot comes to Brainerd with two games tucked under their belts already this season. The team is reputed to be fast, with a strong defensive line. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

PAUL WANER IS MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

NOW PLAYING
SECOND YEAR
IN THE MAJORS

WON THE PRIZE WITH 72 OUT OF
POSSIBLE EIGHTY
VOTES

YOUNG MAN SKYROCKETED TO ENDURING FAME OVER-
NIGHT

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Dec. 5.—Paul Waner, who has been voted the National League's most valuable player for 1927, is perhaps the most colorful player in the major leagues.

In his second year in the major leagues, Waner won the prize with 72 out of a possible 80 votes cast by the committee of sports writers and whose decision was announced over the week-end.

Waner skyrocketed to fame overnight. He came to the Pirates from San Francisco in 1926 and in his first year played sensationally, batting .336 in 144 games.

The past season Waner won the batting crown of the National League by a batting average of .379, leading his closest rival, Hornsby of the Giants, by twenty points. Waner also led in hits with 326 and triples with 18.

Go back only a few years and Waner was just a kid pitcher for a college team in Oklahoma. He jumped all the way to San Francisco of the Pacific Coast League in 1921. He was only 19 then. He developed a sore arm and it was this freak of fate that caused him to turn outfielder.

In 1924 he won a regular berth in the San Francisco outfield and batted .356. The next season he batted .401 and won his trial with the Pirates.

Waner is the first outfielder to win the National League award. There is a wide gulf between Waner and Bob O'Farrell of the Cardinals, the 1926 winner.

O'Farrell won his award principally on defensive play. He was the backbone of the St. Louis team in 1926 but displayed none of the qualities which won for Waner his prize.

Waner led the offensive of the Pirates with his dashing, daring play. Possessed of one of the keenest batting eyes in the major leagues, Waner was ever a menace to opposing pitchers. He was fleet as the wind on the bases and a ball hawk in right field.

There was nothing common between Waner and any of the other winners of the National League award. Dazzy Vance of the Robins won the first award in 1924 on his brilliant pitching record.

In 1925 Hornsby, who was with the Cardinals at that time, won the award on his offensive playing, but it was of a widely different style than that of Waner.

Oddly enough, Hornsby was third in this year's election with 54 points. Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals, for whom, Hornsby was traded, was second with 66 points.

Frisch did not receive a single vote for first place but piled up his points on smaller votes, being well near the top in almost every ballot.

Two pitchers, Red Lucas of the Reds and Charlie Root of the Cubs, received one first place each. Waner received five.

Paul Waner's kid brother, Lloyd, in his first year in the big leagues, was sixth in the voting with 25 points.

A young player and apparently with many of the best years of his career ahead of him, Paul Waner undoubtedly will be a serious contender for the most valuable player award again.

Hornsby is another winner of the award who bids fair to compete for the prize again.

Unlike the American League, the rules of the National do not bar a player once he wins the prize.

DEADLOCK AMONG LEAGUE OFFICIALS

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—Officials of the American League Baseball association attending the meetings of major and minor league officials here this week, were deadlocked today over the question of barring major league ownership of clubs in that circuit.

A resolution excluding clubs from the American association circuit which are owned by major league clubs, was introduced by William Neal, vice president of the Louisville club. Four clubs voted in favor of the resolution and four took a stand against it.

Clubs favoring the proposal were Kansas City, Indianapolis, Louisville and Milwaukee. Opposed were

INDEPENDENT BASKETBALL IN THE LIMELIGHT

St. Paul, Columbus, Minneapolis and Toledo.

Another vote on the resolution as expected at today's session.

The 1928 playing season of the American association will be opened at Toledo, Louisville, Columbus and Indianapolis—all on the eastern end of the loop. Thomas Hickey, president of the American association, announced that the season will open either on April 10 or 11 and close September 23 or 30.

CHICK' MEEHAN IS AMONG THE 'UNCERTAIN' COACHES

New York, Dec. 5.—(U.P.)—"Chick" Meehan has joined T. A. D. Jones in the list of football coaches who are uncertain concerning their plans for 1928. Meehan, who has made a striking success as coach at New York university, will not return next fall but will accept one of a number of attractive offers elsewhere.

Jones, under pressure from Yale graduates and alumni, may change his mind and choose to coach at New Haven in 1928.

Since Meehan's resignation, there has been some talk of "Chick" succeeding Jones at Yale. But men in touch with the Eli football situation declare this to be impossible. Meehan is not a Yale man.

Telegrams are pouring in upon Jones, urging him to withdraw his resignation, but for the moment "Tad" is standing pat.

FARMERS GATHER TODAY TO MOULD THEIR PROGRAM

AMERICAN FARM BUREAU FEDERATION CONVENTION AT CHICAGO

LEGISLATIVE DEMANDS FOR THE YEAR ARE BEING FORMULATED

By EDWARD C. DERR (United Press Staff Correspondent) Chicago, Dec. 5.—Farmers of America gathered at the American Farm Bureau Federation convention here today to mould the legislative program of agriculture for the coming year.

Delegates from more than 40 states including 31 state federation presidents, attended. The convention considered practically every phase of rural life.

The program for the three-day meet includes speeches by leaders of political, educational and military thought as well as talks by "plain farmers."

S. H. Thompson, president of the federation, addressed the convention shortly after it was officially convened. He made his report for the past year.

Substantiating his contention by citing figures of the department of agriculture, Thompson told the delegates economic conditions in agriculture were more unfavorable than in any other industry.

He scored the failure of congress to enact legislation to relieve the farmers' ills, but warned against enactment of price-fixing or government subsidy laws.

Thompson told the delegates the only way permanent relief could be obtained was by spreading the overhead cost of crop control operations among those commodities benefitted.

"We want no government price-fixing," he said. "Neither do we want a government subsidy. We are not desirous of putting the government into business."

"We insist only upon a law that will require each marketed unit of the commodity to pay its share in the cost of its own stabilization and protection."

"Spreading the overhead cost of crop control operations over all the commodities benefitted is the only sound principle upon which a basic and permanent agricultural policy can be established.

All others involve either subsidy, direct price-fixing or putting the government into business and should be avoided."

Thompson said industrial opposition to legislation which would help the farmer was gradually decreasing. He told the delegates that although there still was much to be done in behalf of agriculture, the federation had made substantial progress in the last year.

He compared farming methods of Europe with those of America and said the United States was far ahead of the old world where much of the labor was done by hand or oxen.

A motion picture showing accomplishments of the federation during the year was presented.

Dr. William E. Dodd, of the University of Chicago, told delegates that unless "ancient sectional antagonisms can be forgotten and leaders and people get down to facts, the farmers must become peasants."

"We are in the midst of difficult times," he said. "The farmer is heading straight back to where he originated—peasantry—unless the leaders and people get down to facts."

Prof. Dodd painted a graphic picture of what he termed "the ever increasing menace—peasantry"—by reviewing agricultural conditions since signing of the Declaration of Independence. He said prospects for legislation placing agriculture on a plane with other industries was so poor that thousands were abandoning farming daily.

Former Governor Robert P. Bass, New Hampshire, said all production except agriculture has become highly organized. He said the fundamental aims of farmers of the north, south, east and west were in common and that only by unification could the agricultural depression be relieved.

"In a country highly organized such as ours," he said, "it is not for the best interests for the farmer to have to sell at lower prices than he buys."

"This condition cannot last. It is unstable. Unification of the farmer will remedy it and provide an equal opportunity for agriculture."

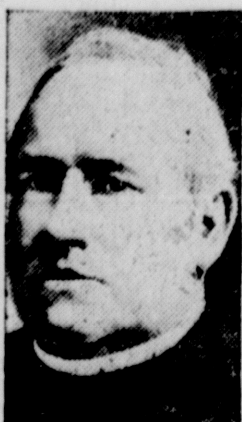

An exposition devoted to the farmers' daily life and his products is being held in conjunction with the convention. Exhibits include much handwork by farmers' wives of backwoods sections. Modern farming machinery and numerous means of "bringing metropolitan life to the farm," also are exhibited.

NUMBER INCREASES HERE

Farmers Report Animals Become
Bolder; Deer Reported
Killed by Pack

Nineteen wolves were shot or trapped within the boundaries of Crow Wing county during the past week as shown by the number to collect state bounties at the office of the county auditor's.

Wolves are reported in greater numbers in this district this year than for many previous and are reported to be bolder because of a decrease in the number of other animals which they prey on. Farmers report seeing carcasses of deer, the remnants of feasts by the wolves.

The following collected bounties during the last week: Otto Fletcher, three, Little Pine; Edgar Kolasz, Morrison county; Ole Anderson, Daggett Brook; Robert J. Potter, Long Lake; Otto Seeke, Watertown; W. Trickler, Roosevelt; L. A. Fuhre, Ross Lake; Sam Buchite, Emily; D. G. Petersen, township 134, range 29; Robert Wood, Crosby; W. A. Ramsdale, Nokay Lake; H. R. Congdon, Oak Lawn; August Schmidt, Sibley; Sam Schultz, Jenkins; William Nickaborn, Ross Lake; Frank Skinaway, Ross Lake, two.

COURT OF AWARDS ADVANCES SCOUTS

Honors Those Who Earned Higher
Rank in Ceremonies at Congregational Church

AUDITORIUM FILLED

Troop Five Awarded Distinction of Having Largest Representation of Boys, Parents.

The December Court of Awards met at the First Congregational church Saturday night to honor many scouts who had earned advancement in the ranks of scouting. In spite of the miserable weather a large crowd was assembled, nearly filling the auditorium of the church. It was particularly gratifying to see so many of the parents of the boys present. Troop Five was awarded the distinction of being the only troop by virtue of having the largest number of scouts, parents, uniforms and awards for that evening.

The Court of Awards is very grateful to the board of the First Congregational church for the privilege of having this meeting in their church, also to Mrs. Louis Knudson who so ably played the marches and accompaniments for the songs on the pipe organ.

The following scouts were advanced in rank as follows:

Second class — Roger Callahan, Jack Deepke, Howard Hass, Richard Kaatz, Harold Strickler and Howard Zander.

Second class merit badges — Elmer Lukens, freemanship; Milton Nelson, freemanship; James Wieland, freemanship.

First class — Zane Smith and John Zander.

First class merit badges — Drexel Geist, carpentry, freemanship, first aid, pathfinding, personal health, public health and safety; Ralph Hallquist, automobilism, beekeeping, cooking and painting; Ralph Lukens, bird study, civics, conservation, pathfinding, scholarship and woodcarving; James Richards, athletics and camping; William Stout, first aid and conservation; Carl Zapffe, canoeing.

Star — Drexel Geist.
Eagle — James Richards.
Bronze Palm — Carl Zapffe.

The next Court of Awards will be held the middle of January. All scouts should make an effort to prepare for some advancement at that time by starting now and not waiting till the last few days.

WRITE IN YOUR OWN WOLF STORY TO US

Weird tales have been told of wolves attacking men, but authenticity of these stories have not been completely established. Is the wolf a sulking, cowardly creature as many would believe or is this animal a ferocious one when driven to panic by the dread of starvation?

The Dispatch would like to hear from real wolf hunters, trappers, and any who can write with conviction regarding the haunts and traits of the wolf, directing your replies to the question, "Will a Wolf Attack a Man?" Also write in any thrilling experience you have had with wolves.

Address letters to the editor, Brainerd Daily Dispatch, immediately.

COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE REVIEW

Rev. H. F. Damon Touches Topic as He Preached on
"Divorce"

MARRIAGE IS SACRED

Jesus Upheld Its Sanctity and Proclaimed Binding Nature

Stating that the Haldeman-Julius case of companionate marriage, and the teachings of Judge Ben B. Lindsey formerly of the juvenile court of Denver, constituted a real menace to American home ideals, Rev. Harold F. Damon preached on "Divorce" at the First Baptist church on Sunday evening. He stated that true love is had never been spoken than the reported statement of Haldeman-Julius, "that the Holy Ghost had no thing to do with his first marriage." A deliberate attempt is being made to force open the door of divorce, and to break down family life, with a consequent break up of the foundations of civilization.

"He is upheld the sanctity of marriage, and proclaimed its binding nature," he said. "This was based upon two facts, its Divine institution, and its peculiar relation in a vital union of life. In the eyes of society man and woman become one through marriage in the establishment of a home. Anything that weakens this relationship, weakens the very fabric of society. In the eyes of God, man and woman become one in a real mystical union that is indissoluble and inseparable by human decree. By making them one man and one woman he condemned Polygamy, by making them one flesh, he condemned divorce."

He also stated that Jesus gave a new ground and law of divorce that was binding for all time. The only possible ground on which it is recognized in His sight is for the cause of adultery. There is no dissolution of marriage on any other ground. "Because of this," it was concluded, "A divorce for any other cause is void in the sight of God, and both parties continue to be husband and wife. A second marriage on the part of those who have been divorced is no marriage, unless it be upon the grounds which Jesus sets forth, and such parties live in adultery. He absolutely condemned by implication the remarriage of the guilty party."

The only cure for the situation is the Gospel of Christ. That alone can fill the hearth of men with love, and iron out the wrinkles in the matrimonial garment.

Damage Reported Slight at Chimney
Fire in Brainerd Fruit
Co. Warehouse

Fire, smoke and water did considerable damage to the home of Peter Goedderz at 602 South 10th street yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Efficient work of the fire department prevented total loss to the building.

The blaze is reported to have started in the basement when a heating appliance was used in an attempt to thaw out pipes. The fire swept through the partitions to the floor above and scorched the ceilings and in one instance forced its way to the second story.

A chimney fire at 8 o'clock last evening at the Brainerd Fruit Co. warehouse, Front street, did little damage.

Bridal Shower for Miss Summerville

Miss Florence Summerville was the honor guest at a bridal shower given at the home of her parents, 1319 O street N. E. The color scheme of white and yellow was carried out. A small bride and groom presented Miss Summerville with a huge white and yellow basket of gifts. There were twenty-six guests present and the evening was spent in playing various appropriate games after which a delicious luncheon was served.

Miss Summerville will be a January bride.

Christmas Sale of 1st Congregational Church

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

December 5, 1902

Mrs. F. W. Wieland and Miss Bessie Wieland left for St. Paul this afternoon.

At the meeting of the Elks lodge last night the matter of furnishing a room in the new St. Joseph's hospital came up for discussion. The matter has been in the hands of a committee for some time and they were given power to act in the matter last night.

Advance sheets of the biennial report of the Game and Fish commission, which is being prepared by Executive Fullerton, show that over 10,000 licenses were issued to deer hunters this fall. Mr. Fullerton places the number of deer killed last winter at 5,000 and the number of moose at 100. This fall he estimates the deer shot 7,000 and the moose at 700. The report will also recommend the amendment of the law so as to adopt the Wisconsin system for deer hunters. In the state when a license is issued to a deer hunter, coupons to the number of each deer which each hunter is allowed to kill are attached. When a deer is shot and shipped one of the coupons must be attached to it for it is subject to seizure by any of the deputy game wardens.

The first game of basketball will be played in this city about the first of the year. It is thought that the first game will be with St. Cloud.

Charles Mitchell, Veteran Juror of Pine River Was Honored
Guest; Santa Attended

What is undoubtedly the first Christmas party of the season and a unique one at that was held this morning at "recess time" in the grand jury room of the court house when Judge Bert Fessler, presiding judge of the district court, officials of the court, members of the Bar Association and 36 jurors gathered to honor Charles Mitchell, veteran juror of Pine River.

The grand jury room was beautifully decorated with Christmas tokens. A Christmas tree exemplified the spirit of the Yuletide season and congratulations of the season were extended by all.

The occasion brought relief to court officials overworked at this time with court matters. In spite of the briefness of the time during the rest period of the court a most enjoyable time was had.

A miniature Santa Claus was on hand at the door to greet all who entered. Refreshments in the form of cakes, stuffed dates, and a dainty buffet luncheon aided by delicious coffee were served. The men were tendered cigars while the lady jurors were further refreshed by candies.

Pine River Was Honored
Guest; Santa Attended

What is undoubtedly the first Christmas party of the season and a unique one at that, was held this morning at "recess time" in the grand jury room of the court house when Judge Bert Fessler, presiding judge of the district court, officials of the court, members of the Bar Association and 36 jurors gathered to honor Charles Mitchell, veteran juror of Pine River.

The grand jury room was beautifully decorated with Christmas tokens. A Christmas tree exemplified the spirit of the Yuletide season and congratulations of the season were extended by all.

The occasion brought relief to court officials overcrowded at this time with court matters. In spite of the brevity of the time during the rest period of the court a most enjoyable time was had.

A miniature Santa Claus was on hand at the door to greet all who entered. Refreshments in the form of cakes, stuffed dates, and a dainty buffet luncheon aided by delicious coffee were served. The men were tendered cigars while the lady jurors were further refreshed by candies.

Norma Shearer's Greatest Role

Norma Shearer, screen star who has made her reputation as an aristocratic character, a wearer of splendid wardrobes and a young woman of culture, has abandoned all these for a role depicting life.

And Norma Shearer, sans wardrobe, sans culture, sans family trees and all other attendants bosh, is still a star—and a greater one.

SYNOPSIS

Hurricane Haley kidnaps Polly, a little dancer from "The Riverside," to make her repay for a deed that he is not sure she committed. Though Hurricane treats her very severely the rest of the crew, led by the mate, Brady, wish to possess the girl, and only Haley stands between her and their bestiality. The crew mutiny and in the forthcoming fight the schooner is rammed by a steamer bound for Frisco. After all is over and the schooner is found to be only slightly damaged, Hurricane arranges to have Polly taken home again. The girl is sorry to go, and in a very little while Hurricane realizes that he, too, is sorry. After a hard cruise the "Sea Sprite" again docks in Frisco and Hurricane is eager to see the girl whom he freely admits he loves.

His thoughts were all of Polly. She came to him in all the little tricks and gestures that were part of her. He saw her standing on the taffrail with the salt wind stirring that thunderous hair. He thought of her on that day when the beams burned and how he had had to leave to avoid smiling in spite of his rancor. He remembered what a rotter he had been to her, and he knew that he was sorry.

He knew that he wanted to see her more than anything in the world, and he knew Polly and was afraid. It was quite late when he did finally leave the house and start towards dockland. There was no moon, and a slight drizzling rain was falling, but with his hat on the back of his head Hurricane trudged along, noticing nothing. He knew that he was in the wrong. Knew that Polly had plenty of reasons for refusing to see him, but he felt that somehow she ought to front nobility. A pair of drunken sailors from the Pacific fleet anchored in the harbor attempted to jostle him from their path, but the angry light that flamed to his eyes brought forth muttered apologies and an eager desire to give him the pavement. Hurricane Haley had earned his name and carried the hall-marks in his face.

He paused outside the Riverside and scowled at a pair of fat Chinamen who were haggling together as to who should pay the few pennies needed to let them see the show. The haggling ceased and, shouldering them to one side, Hurricane marched in and stood in the doorway, blinking at the light.

It was the pause between the first and second show, and as he stood in the doorway looking around he failed to see a single face that seemed familiar. It was the same old crowd, of course, but the same look was on every face with nothing except perhaps a greater degree of viciousness to call attention from one to another. These were the usual attendants, and it was the larger fry that Hurricane was looking for.

A weak faced youth, his face bearing all the plump attributes of degeneracy, was telling a story, probably as weak and vicious as himself, but as he felt Hurricane's glance upon him he stopped and fidgeted uneasily in his seat. A drunken sailor began to clamor that the stranger be seated and take a drink, but a threatening glance from Hurricane quieted him.

Suddenly he saw someone he knew. A scantily attired woman rather fat in person and with bleached hair struggled out of the embrace of a pair of tipsy Lascar seamen. She had been sitting in their laps, and he had not noticed

TRAINING COURSE FOR LEADERS IN BOY SCOUT WORK

Virginia, Minn., Dec. 5.—(UP)—The first session of a five-lesson training course for leaders of the Arrowhead Boy Scout council will be held here Thursday.

The course is open to all men interested in the scout movement and will be of an advanced nature.

Other meetings will be conducted later at Chisholm, Biwabik, and Buhl, and possibly other Arrowhead towns.

Authorities on the various phases of scout work will speak at each session.

NEW BROADCASTING STATION FOR ST. PAUL

St. Paul, Dec. 5.—(UP)—The National Broadcasting company filed articles of incorporation today for $50,000. Incorporators, all of St. Paul, are L. J. Shields, G. P. Castner and E. H. Church. The company will make St. Paul headquarters for a 10,000 watt broadcasting station.

Gulbransen

The Christmas Gift Supreme

What an opportunity we Dads of today have! What a chance to delight the folks with a worthwhile gift—one they will always remember!

What would we have thought if our Dads had surprised us with a Gulbransen for Christmas?

Then picture the Children and Mother—THIS Christmas—a handsome, stately Gulbransen in the parlor!

Imagine their delight when they find they must actually restrain their impulse to pedal hard—for the Gulbransen plays at the lightest touch of a foot.

When they find many player rolls have the words printed on them and that all can gather 'round the Gulbransen and sing.

When they find that any roll can be played in seven different keys by the turn of a knob—high or low—to suit any voice.

When they learn that the Gulbransen is actually theirs—theirs to have and to enjoy for years to come.

Aside from the pleasure which it gives, the Gulbransen affords an unequalled education in music—particularly important in the home where there are children.

Make this supreme Christmas purchase now. It is not necessary to give a great deal of consideration to the buying of a Gulbransen or to "shop around." It's a clean-cut, straight-forward, dependable proposition. The price of each Gulbransen is branded in the back—you pay the same prices as does every other Gulbransen buyer in the United States. It is the only piano so sold.

"The marvelous clarity of tone in the Bosch Radio gives it a decided value over every other instrument now on the market. What impressed me more than anything else was the fact that the tones were so perfect as to give the impression that I was in the same room with the artist instead of miles away. The Bosch Radio also has an advantage in that there is an utter absence of unharmonious sounds so characteristic in other instruments I have heard."

SYNOPSIS

Hurricane Haley kidnaps Polly, a little dancer from "The Riverside," to make her repay for a deed that he is not sure she committed. Though Hurricane treats her very severely the rest of the crew, led by the mate, Brady, wish to possess the girl, and only Haley stands between her and their bestiality. The crew mutiny and in the forthcoming fight the schooner is rammed by a steamer bound for Frisco. After all is over and the schooner is found to be only slightly damaged, Hurricane arranges to have Polly taken home again. The girl is sorry to go, and in a very little while Hurricane realizes that he, too, is sorry. After a hard cruise the "Sea Sprite" again docks in Frisco and Hurricane is eager to see the girl whom he freely admits he loves.

His thoughts were all of Polly. She came to him in all the little tricks and gestures that were part of her. He saw her standing on the taffrail with the salt wind stirring that thunderous hair. He thought of her on that day when the beans burned and how he had had to leave to avoid smiling in spite of his rancor. He remembered what a rotter he had been to her, and he knew that he was sorry.

He knew that he wanted to see her more than anything in the world, and he knew Polly and was afraid. It was quite late when he did finally leave the house and start towards dockland. There was no moon, and a slight drizzling rain was falling, but with his hat on the back of his head Hurricane trudged along, noticing nothing. He knew that he was in the wrong. Knew that Polly had plenty of reasons for refusing to see him, but he felt that somehow she ought to front nobility. A pair of drunken sailors from the Pacific fleet anchored in the harbor attempted to jostle him from their path, but the angry light that flamed to his eyes brought forth muttered apologies and an eager desire to give him the pavement. Hurricane Haley had earned his name and carried the hall-marks in his face.

He passed outside the Riverside and scowled at a pair of fat Chinamen who were haggling together as to who should pay the few pennies needed to let them see the show. The haggling ceased and, shouldering them to one side, Hurricane marched in and stood in the doorway, blinking at the light.

It was the pause between the first and second show, and as he stood in the doorway looking around he failed to see a single face that seemed familiar. It was the same old crowd, of course, but the same look was on every face with nothing except perhaps a greater degree of viciousness to call attention from one to another. Those were the usual attendants, and it was the larger fry that Hurricane was looking for.

A weak faced youth, his face bearing all the pimplly attributes of degeneracy, was telling a story, probably as weak and vicious as himself, but as he felt Hurricane's glance upon him he stopped and fidgeted uneasily in his seat. A drunken sailor began to clamor that the stranger be seated and take a drink, but a threatening glance from Hurricane quieted him.

Suddenly he saw someone he knew, a scantily attired woman rather fat in person and with bleached hair struggled out of the embrace of a pair of tipsy Lascar seamen. She had been sitting in their laps, and he had not noticed know that he had not meant it and that, as he realized now, most of it had been done merely to cover his real feelings.

"Where's Polly?" he asked.

One thing worried him more than the rest. That was the fact that he had sent her home. He knew that she had altered and that she had found a real home on the sea, and now, trudging through the dimly lighted streets of Frisco, he knew that he had sent her home because he could not have kept his true feelings secret for much longer. For once in his life Hurricane Haley was feeling far from confident, and as he passed "The Ship" he felt the need of encouragement.

Wooden Leg Cribbins greeted him, but not as he used to, and Hurricane, much more self-conscious than before, felt the difference.

"Let's have drinks around an' a tune on me," suggested Hurricane. "Okay with me," answered Cribbins, putting the bottles on the bar. Just that from the man in Frisco who was Hurricane's oldest friend. Something was obviously wrong.

They drank their drinks, and a few of the hangers on asked the usual questions, but the old crowd that he used to know and like kept strangely quiet. Wooden Leg left his usual place behind the bar and stood at the other end. When, in the course of his job, he again came near to Hurricane he was careful not to meet his eye. Unable to stand this, Hurricane called out to him:

"Say, Cribbins, what in hell is eatin' you? Anyone would think I was a stranger around here the way you treat me. God, I've spent enough money here for you to treat me civil anyway. If you've got anything on your chest—spill it."

"I don't give a damn whether you've spent money here or not, but I do know that I used to think you were a sure-fire man, an' yer turned out to be just a yeller dog," and Cribbins turned away and spat into the sawdust.

The way the old timers kept him out of the conversation told Haley that whatever the reason for Cribbins' sudden dislike it was shared by the rest of them, and he wondered dimly whether Brady had reached here ahead of him. Anyway he wasn't going to stay anywhere where he wasn't wanted. With a final "Good night, fellows," that received a few mumbled replies but no real answer he went out, and his feet turned automatically in the direction of the Riverside.

her, but as she struggled to her feet and waved her glass aloft in an attempt to stimulate the crowd he recognized Blonde Bessie, as blonde as ever and quite a little fatter. There was an empty table in one of the wings, and Hurricane took it. A waiter, square faced and solicitous, hurried across to him.

Hurricane ordered a bottle of liquor and the waiter grinned approval.

"Any chance of gettin' the blonde baby over there?" asked Hurricane. "Sure thing, Sir," grinned the waiter. This was different from the half drunk Lascar sailors, and there was no doubt that Bessie would not be eager to comply.

Hurricane poured a couple of drinks, but left them on the table, he was in no mood for drinking now. Bessie came walking across to meet the sailor who had asked for her. In truth a trifle eager, for it was a long time since anyone had asked especially for her. When she came to the table and saw the man that had sent for her her lips went white. The color in her cheeks was permanent, but if ever a woman was scared, then Blonde Bessie was.

"Sit down an' have a drink," he said. Somewhat reassured Bessie took her seat, and for a time they sat there silently. Then Hurricane asked the question that was upper most in his mind.

"Where's Polly?" "That little tramp" Bessie exploded, "she came back here with her head held high in the air, you'd thought she was a saint."

Hurricane was impressed, had she really tried to go straight? "Where is she now," he asked. "Oh, she didn't keep her airs long, though, she's over to Tai Tai Fu's dancing for the Chinks."

Every thing went black before Hurricane. The hope that had risen in him died quickly. She was at Tai Fu's dancing for the yellow men. At Tai Fu's, the darkest sink of iniquity in the whole of Frisco. The place where no girl, even of Bessie's stamp, would go willingly. A place of evil habits and even more evil habitations. If he had ever regretted his treatment of Polly there were no regrets now. A cruel sneer came over his face and he rose without a word, paid his bill and started out. Blonde Bessie looked after him indignantly for the loungers around her were laughing, and now that Polly was gone she was the head-liner again. Her dignity was badly injured.

"My God, he sure has got the monkeys. He never so much as says 'Goodnight,' 'Pleased to meet yer' or 'Go to 'ell,' or anything," and the crowd still laughed.

A Gulbransen

The Christmas Gift Supreme

What an opportunity we Dads of today have! What a chance to delight the folks with a worthwhile gift—one they will always remember!

What would we have thought if our Dads had surprised us with a Gulbransen for Christmas?

Then picture the Children and Mother—THIS Christmas—a handsome, stately Gulbransen in the parlor!

Imagine their delight when they find they must actually restrain their impulse to pedal hard—for the Gulbransen plays at the lightest touch of a foot.

When they find many player rolls have the words printed on them and that all can gather 'round the Gulbransen and sing.

When they find that any roll can be played in seven different keys by the turn of a knob—high or low—to suit any voice.

When they learn that the Gulbransen is actually theirs—theirs to have and to enjoy for years to come.

Aside from the pleasure which it gives, the Gulbransen affords an unequalled education in music—particularly important in the home where there are children.

Make this supreme Christmas purchase now. It is not necessary to give a great deal of consideration to the buying of a Gulbransen or to "shop around." It's a clean-cut, straight-forward, dependable proposition. The price of each Gulbransen is branded in the back—you pay the same prices as does every other Gulbransen buyer in the United States. It is the only piano so sold.

"The marvelous clarity of tone in the Bosch Radio gives it a decided value over every other instrument now on the market. What impressed me more than anything else was the fact that the tones were so perfect as to give the impression that I was in the same room with the artist instead of miles away. The Bosch Radio also has an advantage in that there is an utter absence of unharmonious sounds so characteristic in other instruments I have heard."

Says Ethel Barrymore, Noted Actress.
